

WORM HAS TURNED IN BRITISH LABOR

Growth of Socialism and Demand for Rights Surprises England.

LONDON, Nov. 16.—The steady growth of Socialism in England is plunging the "Haves" into such a state that "panic" but mildly expresses it. It is so unusual in plodding, conservative, easy-going England to see the laborer asserting himself that one is led to imagine the country is in the grip of revolution.

The Conservative and Protection press give up hundreds of columns weekly to so-called "exposures" of Socialism, and to picturing the anti-ethical state of England under a Socialistic sway. Anti-Socialistic societies are popping up—mushroom-like—in every town and every unimportant suburb.

A strenuous campaign is being urged by nomadic opponents in gipsy vans, who, armed with tons of printed matter, projecting lanterns and great gramophones, convey their pictures of the terrors of Utopia to the remotest village. On the whole the bogey has frightened England badly. Meanwhile the Socialists chuckle over the amount of gratuitous advertisement they have received.

Thanks to the press, people who have never heard of Socialism are now fully acquainted with the creed, and are beginning to wonder if it is as black as it is painted.

The Socialists say that the English press has saved them hundreds of thousands of pounds in advertising. The latest convert is J. A. Allan, the millionaire head of the Allan line of steamships. He has fought for a seat in the Glasgow council as an avowed Socialist.

WOMAN DROPS DEAD ON SEEING SON AGAIN

NEW YORK, Nov. 16.—Fanny Vitale, had worried for three days over the disappearance of her twelve-year-old son, Angelina. Yesterday, when the boy appeared at the public school, where he is a pupil, the principal at once sent word to the boy's home.

Mrs. Vitale started for the school on the run. Just as she got within the school room and had uttered a cry of delight at seeing her boy she was seized with a hemorrhage and fell dead.

WHISTLER'S RETORT.

James McNeill Whistler, the famous and eccentric American artist, was one day trying on a hat in a London store, when a customer rushed in and, mistaking the artist for a salesman, exclaimed: "I say, this 'at doesn't fit!" The artist eyed him all over, from head to foot, and then replied: "Neither does your coat, and I'll be hanged if I like the color of your trousers."—Cleveland Leader.

Count Szechenyi's Sisters

Here are the sisters of Count Szechenyi, who will welcome Gladys Vanderbilt when she goes as a bride to her new home in Hungary. On the left is the Countess Haugtz, and on the right is the Countess Marie Szechenyi.

PRINCESS DE CHALAIS DEAD; WAS PRETTY AMERICAN GIRL; POPULAR AT RUSSIAN CAPITAL

PARIS, Nov. 16.—Miss Beatrice Winans, American by birth, but French by her marriage with Prince de Bearn, who is the bearer of one of the greatest names in France, has just died in the flower of her age.

As much by her charm as by her real beauty, she had conquered for herself the first position in the society of the Russian capital, where her husband was the secretary of the French embassy. Clouds had, however, begun to loom up in this lady's life, the question being whether she would continue to bear without a contest the fine title of Princess de Chalais.

Nothing was less certain, and everything pointed to the fact that on the death of the Duc de Tallyrand, who is now prevented by illness from undertaking any judicial action, this right would be tested before the courts. As a matter of fact, the principality of Chalais is not, as the Prince de Bearn supposed, a title transmissible by women, like any ordinary title.

Only the oldest representative of the family of Tallyrand Perigord has a right to it. It is not sufficient to be a Tallyrand by the female line to obtain the title. Beatrice Winans knew this, and although the matter still had to be fought out, she was not ignorant of the fact that one day or other the privilege of bearing this title of nobility would escape her.

If one is to believe a note which appeared recently in a publication that is supposed to be rather favorable to the Duc d'Orleans than otherwise, things are not going on very well with this young prince, his family and entourage.

The duchess, an Austrian archduchess, seems not to have learned from her reading of French history that resignation which has always been a marked quality of the queens of France. She finds that her husband, who is a very handsome man, takes too little trouble to please her.

He is, for one thing, too fond of traveling. When he is not traveling toward the North Pole he is going at high speed between Brussels and Palermo. Briefly, she finds herself neglected, and she has begun to complain. She feels the matter so keenly, indeed, that during the due's recent polar expedition she went to her mother, from where she now refuses to huddle to join her husband at their usual home at Wood Norton. This has caused great excitement in the entourage of the prince.

These being the facts, the due could not preside at the marriage of his sister, Princess Louise. A family council was held, and an emissary was sent to negotiate a reconciliation between the young couple. It is learned now on good authority that the Duchess d'Orleans has reconsidered the matter, and that she will be at Wood Norton to receive the princely and other guests who will go there to be present at the marriage of her sister-in-law.

Great preparations are being made so that these may be royally treated by this king without a throne, but who likes to show that he is first of all the royal races now in existence.

Twickenham House being sold and York House also given up, the due now only has this estate in the north, an extensive and even sumptuous hunting "lodge," but it is hardly vast enough to offer becoming hospitality to the monarchs of England and Spain and their respective suites, without mentioning all the guests from France who are going to be present.

GERMAN AFRICAN TOUR GIVES RICH RESULTS

BERLIN, Nov. 16.—The recent trip of the Secretary of the Colonies Dernburg to German East Africa promises to give valuable results, some of which are also of interest to Americans.

No official report of the trip has been made so far, and although interviewed by several newspaper men the secretary has refused to give any detailed information, but he says that he has found hundreds of square miles in German territory where cotton may be raised to advantage.

The climate and soil of the German colonies in East Africa are ideal for the raising of the finest grade of cotton, he says; the only difficulty being to get it to the market, means for which must be started by the government, and then Germany will not longer be dependent upon America for its supply of cotton.

One of the manufacturers who accompanied Secretary Dernburg has already bought a very large tract of land near Dares Salaam and intends to plant cotton at once. The cheap labor will enable him to compete with American cotton even before railroads are built.

YOUNG MOTHER ACQUITTED; CHARGED WITH MATRICIDE

CHICAGO, Nov. 16.—A mild hysterical screams of joy, Mary Mette-Sladek, the twenty-two-year-old mother, received the verdict of a jury in Judge Winder's court last night which acquitted her of the murder of her mother, Mary Mette.

Another indictment, charging her with the murder of her father, Frank Mette, is pending, but it may not be pressed. The verdict was read at 10:45 p. m.

FRANCE TO SELL HUNTING RIGHTS

PARIS, Nov. 16.—The French government is about to put up at auction the right to keep packs and hunt over the state forest lands, with the exception of those of the departments of the Seine, the Seine-et-Oise, Seine-et-Marne, and Oise.

The privilege will be for nine years. This is a big event in the French world of sport, and is of interest to all the keepers of packs in the country, the chief of those concerned being the Duc de Rochefoucauld d'Estissac, Comte Bertrand de Valon, Comte de Levis-Mirepoix, Baron Roger, Comte de la Roche, M. Hubert Michel, and other representatives of aristocratic families. It is pretty certain that all the present holders of hunting rights will renew their leases.

All around Paris, in the forests of Rambouillet, Compiègne, Laigle, Halatte, Fontainebleau, Isle d'Adam, and Carrières, the Duchesse d'Uzes, Marquis de Laigle, Prince Murat, Comte Grouffin, and M. Paul Lehauty are the holders of hunting rights from the state up to and including 1911.

MRS. MICHAEL P. GRACE ENTERTAINS ROYALTY

NEW YORK, Nov. 16.—Mrs. Michael P. Grace entertained royalty for the first time at Battle Abbey the other day, when Princess Henry of Battenberg drove over from Eastbourne, where she was staying with Mrs. Freeman Thomas. The royal visit was arranged by Mrs. Thomas, whose house at Eastbourne was taken last year by Mrs. Grace's eldest daughter, the Hon. Mrs. Hubert Beaumont.

Mrs. Grace, who was quite alone with her daughter, Gladys, was taken completely by surprise, but she gave the princess tea and showed her all over the abbey. The princess was charmed, not only with the house, but with her hostess and her daughter, and declared that she would much like to pay Mrs. Grace a longer visit—a wish which is a sort of command.

The only drawback to the abbey is a clause in the lease in which Sir Anthony Webster, who owns the abbey, insists that the principal rooms, including the historic great hall, shall be thrown open to the public once a week during the summer months. This clause is found to be very trying when a house party is assembled at Battle Abbey.

RIGHT.

Mrs. Terry—My daughter is away at boarding school, and I can't help feeling worried, because I haven't heard from her in two weeks.

Mrs. Arvont—You ought to have sent her to one of them correspondence schools.—From Harper's Weekly.

N. Auth Stamped on Pork Products Means Purity

Our Name is Plainly Stamped on Each and Every Ham, Piece of Bacon, Package of Sausage, etc., that Is Turned Out of our Factory.

This is an absolute guarantee that our products are as pure as skill and cleanliness can make them and that they have passed the most rigid inspection by the Pure Food Law Inspectors.

At our factories, Seventh Street & Virginia Ave. S. W., purity reigns supreme. Cleanliness is our hobby. We have striven for it ever since we first started business—the idea has grown with our growth.

Purity Bacon

Our Bacon has that rich flavor, that crisp brown quality after cooking, that is only found in the best.

Purity Lard

Our Lard has that flaky white appearance and absolute purity that insures successful and hygienic cooking.

Purity Ham

Our Hams are selected only from the best corn-fed hogs, cured by the most careful process and flavored to suit the taste of the most fastidious.

Our Pork Products are Most Carefully Selected

We use only the very finest corn-fed hogs. We are constantly experimenting to improve the flavor, the food value, the quality generally, of everything that bears our name.

This year our products are better than they were last year—next year, if by any means they can be improved, we mean to have them better still.

We want you to test our Pork Products. We want you to compare them with other brands. We want you to see our Pure Food Factories—our modern methods of handling meats. We want you to note the Purity and Quality that everywhere prevail.

Purity Pork

Our Pork Products are carefully selected from the finest stock, stamped with our name and guaranteed to be absolutely the best and purest that can be had.

N. Auth Provision Company

Purity Pork Products

Purity Sausage

Our Sausage is as good as the most modern processes can make it—its flavor is unsurpassed and it is absolutely without impurity.

A Word About Quality